

Interview Reflection Worksheet

Reflecting on your interview performance is a crucial step towards becoming more effective in presenting yourself to potential employers. This worksheet is designed to guide you through a thoughtful examination of your recorded interview practice session. While it might feel awkward or uncomfortable to watch yourself, critically analyzing your responses, body language, and overall presentation will help prepare you for real interviews that are more high-stake.

1. How would you rate your overall performance in the interview on a scale of 1 to 10? Why? What parts of the interview do you feel were your strongest? Which parts of the interview do you think could have been better? What specific aspects would you like to improve?

2. Evaluate your delivery and communication style. How natural did you feel and appear during the interview? Consider your pace, tone, and body language. Were you able to maintain eye contact and engage as if in a real conversation? Identify moments where you might have stumbled or felt unsure and explore strategies to improve.

3. Reflect on how your responses align with what you perceive to be the employer's needs and the job requirements. Did you effectively communicate how your skills, experiences, and goals fit with the role and the company? Were your examples relevant and impactful, clearly demonstrating your skills and experiences? Consider areas where you could better tailor your answers to demonstrate your fit and commitment to the position.